About the esteemed panelists (In alphabetical order):

Nasser Al-Kidwa born in Gaza in 1954, is a senior member of Fatah and Yasser Arafat’s nephew. He has been a member of the Palestinian National Council (PNC) since 1975 and heads the National Democratic Assembly. Together with Marwan Barghouti, another veteran Fatah leader, he formed the ‘Freedom’ list to compete in the May 2021 legislative elections. Kidwa joined Fatah in 1969 and subsequently joined its Central Committee (FCC). Over the years, he developed a rocky relationship with Fatah chairman and Palestinian Authority president Mahmoud Abbas.

In April 2021, he announced the formation of a break-away Fatah faction, the National Democratic Assembly, to contest legislative elections in May 2020. A few hours before the deadline for electoral candidacy registrations, Kidwa merged his list with Barghouti, another Fatah rival of Abbas, to produce the ‘Freedom’ list. In response, the FCC expelled Kidwa. In a further act of retaliation, Abbas announced he had fired him as director of the Yasser Arafat Foundation — despite the fact that the foundation is a legally independent institution. Many analysts consider the joint Kidwa-Barghouti challenge as the main reason for Abbas’ subsequent decision to cancel the elections.

After serving as the PLO’s representative to the United Nations between 1991-2005, Kidwa briefly served as Palestinian foreign minister in 2005. He played a key role bringing Palestine’s case against Israel’s separation wall to the International Court of Justice, which issued an advisory opinion declaring the wall’s illegality in 2004.

Since 2007, Kidwa has held various international roles including as the UN Secretary General’s Special Envoy to Afghanistan; and the Arab League Envoy to Syria (serving as deputy under Kofi Annan and then Lakhdar Brahimi), and as the Arab League’s Special envoy to Libya.

Victoria Brittain has lived and worked as a journalist in Saigon, Algiers, Nairobi, Washington and London. She has travelled extensively in Africa and the Middle East and written reports, given lectures, done translations for liberation movements. Besides 20+ years at The Guardian, she has worked for many other media in the UK, France and the US. In the 1980s she was a consultant to the UN on two reports, on the Impact of Conflict on Children, and on Women. She is the author, co-author or editor of a number of books and plays, including two on Southern Africa during the 1980s. Death of Dignity, on Angola in the 1980s was given to Thabo Mbeki when he became president by a top Angolan official who was one of its sources. With Abdul Minty, she edited Children of Resistance, on children, repression, and the law in apartheid South Africa – from the landmark 1987 Harare conference when the exiled ANC leadership met there with a group of brutalised children with their mothers and lawyers. Victoria has been visiting and writing about Gaza and the West Bank for more than 20 years, and is a founding trustee of the Palestine Book Awards. This year she edited, with Haifa Zangana, Writing Palestine, a book celebrating the PBA's 10th anniversary. She is a patron of the Palestine Solidarity Campaign.

Educator Jessica Sherman has recently retired from lecturing in Mathematics Education at the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg. She has been involved in social justice organization since 1979 prior to the formation of the UDF and since. She was an active member of several UDF structures as well as a founder member of Jews for Social Justice which took a stand against Apartheid during the 1980s. Jessica also played a role on a cultural level, composing and performing her own political songs, researching songs of the struggle which were sung at funerals, meetings, conferences etc... In the early 2000s Jessica was on the committee of Jewish Voices whose goal was to educate South Africans about the Palestinian struggle. In 2014 she was central to the formation of Jewish Voices for a Just Peace (JVJP) whose aim was similar but saw the Jewish community as the target for that education. At the same time, an organization of solidarity for Palestinian struggle was formed on whose behalf Jessica speaks today. It is called South African Jews for a Free Palestine (SAJFP)
